Fiction

Raybearer by Jordan Ifueko

Tarisai has always longed for the warmth of a family, because she was raised in isolation by an often absent mother known as The Lady. The Lady sends Tarisai to the capital of the global empire of Aritsar to compete with other children to be chosen as one of the Crown Prince's Council of 11. But The Lady has other ideas, including a magical wish that Tarisai is compelled to obey. Is Tarisai strong enough to choose a different path for herself?

Sanctuary

by Paola Mendoza & Abby Sher

It's 2032, and in this near-future America, all citizens are chipped and everyone is tracked. It's almost impossible to survive as an undocumented immigrant, but that's exactly what sixteen-year-old Vali is doing. When Vali's mother's counterfeit chip starts malfunctioning and the Deportation Forces raid their town, they are forced to flee. When Vali's mother is detained, Vali must carry on with her younger brother across the country to make it to safety before it's too late.

Black Brother, Black Brother

by Jewell Parker Rhodes

Dante is one of the few African American kids in his school and sometimes wishes he were invisible. With a skin tone darker than his lighter-skinned brother Trey, Dante is bullied. Dante begins to find a place to belong at the local youth center when he meets a former Olympic fencer, and begins training as a competitive fencer. Dante then starts on an empowering path to finding his voice.

One Person, No Vote: How Not All Voters Are Treated Equally

by Carol Anderson

After the election of President Barack Obama, a rollback of voting rights occurred, punctuated by a 2013 Supreme Court decision that undid the Voting Rights Act of 1965. This allowed districts with a history of racial discrimination to change voting requirements without approval from the Department of Justice. This book follows the stunning aftermath of that ruling, and explains how voter suppression works, from photo ID requirements to gerrymandering to poll closures.

It also explores the resistance: the organizing, activism, and court battles to fully restore the basic right to vote to all Americans.

Graphic Novels

Teen Titans: Beast Boy

by Kami Garcia and Gabriel Pico

Gar Logan has spent his entire life being overlooked. He wants to know what it feels like to be one of the popular kids. When he accepts a wild dare, he finally impresses the popular kids. Then, almost overnight, he grows six inches, his voice drops and it looks like he's going to get everything he's ever wanted, but at what cost.

Where You'll Find Me

Perfect, Lush, and Bounce

Beth Vabrel

Beth Vabrel wrote her first story just for herself—not because it was an assignment for school—when she was in fourth grade. She remembers her mom reading it and saying, "Some day, Beth, you're going to write a story and it's going to be published." Looking back,

Beth can't help but wonder what would've happened if her mom had just said, "That's nice, Beth".

Book Titles:

The Newspaper Club

The Humiliation of Pipi McGee

Jake Burt

Jake Burt loves writing so much that when he's not doing it, he's teaching it to students in Connecticut. He also teaches math, social studies and ecology, but writing is his favorite subject. In fact, if you thought of Jake as a one-dimensional guy who ate, breathed, and dreamed stories, he'd be fine with that.

Book Titles:

Greetings From Witness Protection

The Right Hook of Devlin Velma

The Tornado

Cleo Porter and the Body Electric

Janae Marks

In high school, Janae thought she wanted to pursue musical theater. She loved being on stage, but eventually realized that she cared more about the stories than the performances. While getting her undergraduate English degree, she switched her focus to creative writing, and never looked back.
